How to Lead When What You Know Doesn't Count Anymore

A SCIENCE-BASED PRACTICE FOR LEADERSHIP TEAMS

Introduction to Navigating Uncertainty is a blended-learning online course and community of practice. The program is designed to assist leadership teams toward successfully navigating through ongoing change and uncertainty.

Whenever you get blindsided, confidently set your new course.

There is no question we are living in one of the most challenging times in recent memory, across all the domains of our lives. This program, derived from behavioral research and designed by an experienced Fortune 50 C-Suite executive, brings leadership teams together to learn how to identify the right answers and lead through chaos with confidence.

» This course provides the foundation for an optional follow-on 4-week advanced course

"The science-based approach and practices to help professionals navigate through challenging times have definitely benefited my team. People were glued to her presentation, and left with real, practical ideas to help them deal head-on with the many challenges we are facing in a hyper-growth, uncertain and constantly changing environment."

– Mike Hamilton, Global Head of IT, DataBricks
